

WEEKLY RADAR REPORT 6-20-2021

Technical Market View

The S&P 500 (SPX) suffered its worst week since February as it pulled back from record highs amid concerns over tapering with the hawkish Fed view. This was the first close below the 55-MA since early March and just above the low-end of May value at 4120. A move lower has support at 4100 and then VWAP from the March lows is down around 4073.50. Momentum continues to roll over with MACD in the early innings of a bear cross while RSI broke its uptrend early in the week and closed near its lowest level in the last year. There are some signs of a short-term bounce developing and found support on Friday at the 50% retracement of the rally from the May lows at 4144. Cloud support is also at 4141 and an area of interest as we have not closed below cloud support since before the Election in 2020. A quick bounce higher targets 4200, filling the gap from Friday. That would also back-test the 21-EMA.

Market Sentiment/Breadth

AAll Sentiment for the week ending 6/16 showed a slight rise in bullish responses to 41.1% vs 40.2% prior while bears rose to 26.2% vs 20.7%. Neutral sentiment fell to a six-week low. NAAIM Exposure rose again to 98.52, starting to get into the more cautious territory after weeks of elevated but not yet extreme readings. Lipper Fund flows had $7.1B in outflows from equities, the largest exodus from stocks in more than six weeks. As of Friday's close, we had 93 new highs vs 76 new lows, more balanced breadth than we've had in recent weeks. The percentage of stocks above their 50-day MA fell to 46.9%, a notable negative divergence with the S&P, while those above the 200-day was 71.1%. CBOE Equity P/C 50-day MA was 0.48 and starting to inflect higher again. NYSE Summation fell to 769.13 this week and remains above the 8-EMA but will see a bearish cross this week. NASI started to turn over as well but farther away from an 8-EMA cross than the S&P. NYMO finished the week at the lows at -53 and approaching an area where we typically see a bounce back short-term. CNN Fear and Greed was 30 and lowest level of 2021.

Weekly Open Interest Radar

Chewy (CHWY) shares consolidating above the rising 8- and 21-EMA and just below a big volume node from March and April at $83. A move outside of June value and through $80 has room up to that key VPOC and then a big gap from $86.50 to $97.50. CHWY has seen some size call buying recently including over 4000 July $75 calls and 1,200 January $110 calls while the October $65 puts sold to open 3,500X. The $34.6B leader in ecommerce for pet supplies is coming off of a strong quarter with 31% growth in revenues and 31.6% growth in active customers.

Trade to Consider: Long the CHWY July $80 Calls for $3.40 or Better

Insider Trade of the Week

8x8 (EGHT) with a rare open market buy on 6/7 from CEO David Sipes of 43,000 shares at $23.47, a $1M investment. This is the first insider buys in the name since 2019 when former CEO Vikram Verma was active buying stock between $17 and $24. EGHT has traded poorly in 2021, down 20% YTD, but remains up over 70% over the last twelve months. The $2.76B company trades 140X earnings, 5.2X sales, and 18X cash. EGHT provides voice, video, chat, contact center, and enterprise-class API SaaS solutions. Their unified communications, team collaboration, and video conferencing are used by small businesses, mid-market, and large government agencies. EGHT recently announced a new strategic plan that includes shuttering some underperforming, low-margin businesses and focusing more on UCaaS. The company sees a massive opportunity in cloud communications over the next 2-3 years with an estimated TAM of $75B+. They see their X Integrated Solution helping bridge gaps for enterprise customers assisting both employee and customer experience. In FY22 their focus remains on expanding their platform, expanding their base through both cross-sell opportunities and retention, and executing on a Go-to-Market Strategy. Analysts have an average target for shares of $32 with a Street High $45 from Craig Hallum who cites new logos and strong demand for its Microsoft Teams related capabilities, a clear line of sight to sustainable free cash flow in 2H22, and more consistent execution under new CEO Sipes. Short interest is 16.85%. Hedge fund ownership fell 5.5%. Dorsal Capital, King Street, and Ranger Investment all buyers while Whale Rock Capital sold their entire 3.7M share position.

Earnings Preview

CarMax (KMX) reporting earnings on 6/25 before the open with the Street looking for $1.63 on $6.23B. Next quarter is guided to $1.55/$5.88B while the FY is $5.79 and $23.03B. Shares have traded lower in each of the last seven reports with an average closing move of 6.15% and a max move of 11%. The current implied move is 5.67%. Shares are near a breakdown out of a bear flag under $112.50 with room back to $101.50 as it fills a low-volume gap. The $18.2B company trades 17.6X earnings, 0.96X sales, and 36X FCF. KMX is a leading retailer of used vehicles in the US and benefitting from rising demand over the last year. There's been a surge in wholesale prices this year as well but Manheim data indicating that the rise has slowed in recent months with the first two weeks of June up just 0.29% and could put further pressure on near-term guidance. Analysts have an average target for shares of $123.50 and a Street High $165. Wedbush cut shares to Neutral in May citing toughening comps in May coupled with tight inventory that have led to a deceleration from the mid-teens growth levels versus 2019 in March and April down to the +LSD levels in May-to-date, a potential sign that share gains experienced throughout a time where comparisons were easiest are slowing. At the same time, wholesale prices have started to level out, and new car inventories are starting to improve, which could slow underlying used unit market growth versus 2019. Short interest is 2.6% and down at multi-year lows. Hedge fund ownership rose 1.2% in Q1. In October, a director bought $252K in stock at $93.40.

Top 40 Micro-Cap Profile of the Week

Werewolf Therapeutics (HOWL) a recent new Biotech issue that looks promising as a small cap with a market cap of just $400M.

HOWL is an innovative biopharmaceutical company pioneering the development of therapeutics engineered to stimulate the body's immune system for the treatment of cancer. It is leveraging its proprietary PREDATOR™ platform to design conditionally activated molecules that stimulate both adaptive and innate immunity with the goal of addressing the limitations of conventional proinflammatory immune therapies. Its molecules, INDUKINE™ molecules, are intended to selectively target the tumor microenvironment, or TME.

Its PREDATOR platform consists of its protein engineering technologies to generate INDUKINE molecules with multiple functional domains rationally engineered into a single protein to achieve the desired pharmaceutical profile. Each lead INDUKINE molecules consists of four components: a cytokine, an inactivation domain, a half-life extension domain and a proprietary protease-cleavable linker. HOWL is engineering conditionally activated proinflammatory immunomodulators, or INDUKINE molecules, which are delivered systemically but activated only in the TME with the goal of generating potent anti-tumor response while minimizing toxicities.

HOWL's most advanced product candidates are WTX-124 and WTX-330, are systemically delivered, conditionally activated Interleukin-2, or IL-2, and Interleukin-12, or IL-12, respectively, INDUKINE molecules for the treatment of solid tumors. It plans to submit an investigational new drug application, or IND, to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, or FDA, for each of WTX-124 and WTX-330 in the first half of 2022, and thereafter initiate a Phase 1/1b clinical trial for each candidate in multiple tumor types as a single agent and in combination with an immune checkpoint inhibitor. WTX-124 is designed to be a systemically delivered, conditionally activated IL-2 INDUKINE molecule for the treatment of advanced solid tumors with the potential to be the only systemically delivered IL-2 therapy with full cytokine potency and function to drive robust antitumor effector responses. WTX-330 is designed to be a systemically delivered, conditionally activated IL-12 INDUKINE molecule for the treatment of relapsed or refractory advanced or metastatic solid tumors or lymphoma with the potential to be the only systemically delivered, conditionally activated IL-12 therapy with normal tissue IL-12 receptor, or IL-12R, blockade and with full IL-12 potency and function.

Program	Indication(s)	Program Rights	Pre-IND	IND-Enabling	Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Upcoming Milestones
WTX-124 IL-2 INDUKINE Molecule	Solid Tumors Monotherapy and in combination with checkpoint inhibitors							IND filing 1H2022
WTX-330 IL-12 INDUKINE Molecule	Solid Tumors and Lymphoma Monotherapy and in combination with checkpoint inhibitors							IND filing 1H2022
WTX-613 IFN-α INDUKINE Molecule	Solid Tumors and Hematologic Malignancies Monotherapy and in combination with standard of care							IND filing 1H2023

HOWL recently noticed it has enough cash to fund operations for at least 24 months. Pre-clinical data has been strong and its platform with the ability to transform cytokines with proven biologic activity into protein drugs has enormous potential.
